

The Unifying Theory of Everything

Imagine that there was a principle or rule that held together the complete structure of the universe. Imagine if this theory provided for the rule of law by which all aspects of physical reality could be explained.

This rule has been elusive.

And why is that?

The answer is quite simple. Your universe is unique to you. The universes in which all other life forms exist is unique to them. Your perception of reality is based on the vibration you emit. That vibration is unique, not just in the present moment but also in all past moments and the all future moments.

The moment that exists right now for you is unique to you and therefore your experience is always and forever unique.

The Laws of the Universe are constant, but since perception is an individual thing, those laws are perceived differently by each who experiences.

You are an experienter of your reality as well as the creator of it. You choose your experience.

You are actually in full control of that experience, as is everyone else. You might seem to drift along without much control in a malicious environment created out of chaos, but actually you are the God-energy of your reality.

You are always choosing your experience whether you realize it or not. It's simply that you have never been taught how to consciously choose your experience of reality.

You have not been given the information that would allow you to perceive your reality from a higher perspective.

You have not been shown how to tune into streams of thought that resonate with Source energy and love.

In fact, by the sheer weight and magnitude of your limiting beliefs, you are often choosing to dip into fearful and lack-based streams of consciousness.

If you knew the unifying theory of everything, you would choose your creation more deliberately.

Physical reality is nothing more than a platform that allows for a unique journey of self-discovery.

You are an aspect of Source and cannot be separated from Source.

You are eternal and cannot not exist.

You are an attractive, love-based being living in a reality based on the Law of Attraction, therefore loss is not possible.

You are on an expansive journey of exploration and you expand through every experience.

Your goal of expansion is achieved in each and every moment.

You are in complete control of your exploration and since there is nothing left but to discover more about yourself as an aspect of Source, you are forever on your wonderful journey of self-exploration.

You chose to come to this reality and conduct your exploration. You very much wanted to be here in this time of awakening.

You set powerful intentions prior to your birth and you knew the rules of the game. You intended to explore the subjects of love and acceptance, not fear and control.

You intended to explore true freedom and abundance, not limitation and lack. And you intended to expand in joy, not in suffering.

Your pre-birth intentions will come forth as long as you allow them to. It's completely up to you.

The system of physical reality is based on this exploration you are conducting and so you are always provided with everything you need to explore whatever you choose to explore.

What are you exploring now?

Does that exploration align with the intentions you set prior to your birth? If so, wonderful. If not, you can now make a change.

You can radically change your entire approach to life in order to explore who you truly are rather than exploring who you are not.

Who you truly are is a limitless and magnificent being of pure positive love.

Who you are not is a limited being of fear and control.

Which version of you have you been exploring thus far?

Which version would you like to explore now?

If you wish for things to be different than they are, you are exploring who you are not. You are assuming that there is some force outside yourself dictating what you may experience.

This is the basis of all explorations around limitation and lack.

You don't realize that you are the creator and so you cast yourself as the victim.

The creator accepts responsibility for all they have created. They do not take it personally, because they understand their inherent worthiness.

They realize that the conditions are simply a reflection of their vibration. They do not try to control or change the outside conditions.

They do not seek to feel better in the conditions. Nor do they use the conditions as an excuse to feel bad. Instead, they go within and they alter their set of beliefs.

They do not simply accept their beliefs as true or false. They define them as either limiting or empowering. They reduce the intensity of their limiting beliefs through analysis and process them by proving them to be false.

In the exploration of who you are, the universe will fully support you through the use of inspiring thoughts and ideas.

You will be guided on each step of your unique journey to explore who you truly are. You will come to understand the magnificent and limitless nature of your being.

You will be engaged and receive satisfying experiences. Your unique talents and attributes will emerge.

You will become confident and courageous. You will no longer be limited by irrational fear.

You will exist more and more in the state of bliss. Your passions and soul's purpose will be revealed to you. You will be living the life you intended to live.

This is the effective approach to life and it is exhilarating. You can only adopt this radically new approach to life by doing something radical.

You must radically alter your perspective on the subject of bad and wrong.

The unifying theory of everything is the idea that every single aspect of physical reality is right as it is. There is no wrong anywhere in the universe.

The idea of something being bad or wrong comes from a fear-based place of judgment.

Judgments are derived from beliefs. If you judge something to be good, you do so because you possess an empowering belief that causes you to perceive the subject as good.

If you perceive that something is bad or wrong, the perception is created by the existence of a limiting belief. Without the limiting belief you could not perceive the subject as wrong. Therefore, everything is actually right.

Without the existence of limiting beliefs, there could be no wrong and so to live the life you intended to live, your work is to process and reduce the intensity of your own self-created limiting beliefs.

Wrong is an illusion.

A limiting belief causes the illusion.

Your negative emotion is your indication of a limiting belief. The negative emotion is your sign that you have dipped into a limited perspective on this subject.

The limiting belief causes you to perceive the subject as wrong and fear pops up as a response. This fear is part of your survival instinct, and it causes you to tap into a stream of consciousness based in fear.

When you immerse yourself in that stream, you will attract urges to change the conditions. If you act on an urge, you become the victim of your reality rather than the creator of your reality and so your approach to life is now that of the victim who wishes that things were different.

If you can reach a higher perspective on the subject, you will feel a bit of relief and gain clarity.

You will regain your alignment with the intentions you set prior to your birth and you will once again become the conscious creator of your reality.

You will step back onto your inspired path to discover who you truly are by finding a way to see the subject of your fear as right and accept it as it is.

You are either exploring who you truly are or who you are not. Either exploration is valid, because it's expansive.

However, the exploration of who you are not is in direct conflict with the intentions you set prior to your birth and so you will exist in fear, doubt and confusion.

Are you experiencing this now?

Then all you must do is realize that your approach of fear and control cannot work in a reality where the unifying truth of everything is love, acceptance and the absence of wrong.

Adopt this new approach to life and you will quickly and easily regain your alignment with who you truly are and you'll return to the exploration of your true self.

*With our love,
We are Joshua*